ISSA recognized for "decisive contribution" to prevention culture

ISSA, 26.04.2013 | News

The Italian Inter-Association Council for Prevention (CIIP) has presented the prestigious CIIP Award 2013 to the ISSA, in recognition of contributions to safety and health at work.

ISSA Secretary General Hans-Horst Konkolewsky

The Award was presented to the ISSA Secretary General Hans-Horst Konkolewsky by the leaders of the CIIP at a special event held at the Chamber of Deputies in Rome on the occasion of Worker Memorial Day on 26 April, "for the excellent and decisive contribution given to the research and to the evolution of the health and safety at work international legislation, as well as for promoting the dissemination of the culture of risk prevention in every place of life, study and work."

The CIIP brings together 15 different safety professional associations, and the award was presented during an international panel organized by the CIIP on the development of a safety culture and activities, involving experts from international organizations, the European Union as well as Italy.

During the event, the ISSA Secretary General made a presentation on international trends in occupational safety culture in social security.
